- 25X1 1. On 8 June, the 1 Battalion of the Li Hong Kwang 李榮光 (? Li Hong Kwang 李洪光) Detachment of Korean Communist troops entered Antung (124-22, 40-08). There were over 470 men in the battalion.
- 25X1 [] Note: The Korean Li Hong Kwang Detachment has often been reported as the Li Hung Kwang Detachment, according to the Chinese reading of the characters. Some confusion seems to exist concerning the second character of the name of the detachment. The character has been reported as 洪 and as 紅, both of which are read "Hung" in Chinese and "Hong" in Korean.
- 25X1 [] the Li Hong Kwang Detachment was about 20 kilometers east of Saupingschieh (124-22, 42-11) on 11 June. []
- 25X1 between 500 and 600 Korean Volunteer Army troops entered Antung with the Chinese Communist troops about 9 June.)
2. On 14 June, the 2 Battalion of the Li Hong Kwang Detachment, with a strength of 460 men, entered Antung.
3. On 1 July, approximately 70 troops of the 2 Battalion of the Li Hong Kwang Detachment left Antung for Kuanshui (灌 水) near Kuantien (124-46, 40-44). From Kuanshui the troops were to proceed to Tunghua (125-57, 41-41).
4. On 3 July, over 30 special service troops under the command of CH'OE Myong-chi (崔 明之) of the Li Hong Kwang Detachment in Antung arrived at Tsachokou (123-55, 40-53) to relieve (? Korean? Chinese?) troops stationed there. These 30 special service troops were armed with rifles and two light machine guns.
- 25X1 5. On 3 July, over 200 Korean troops of the Li Hong Kwang Detachment proceeded from Antung in the direction of Kuantien. [] Note: On 16 June, about 2000 Chinese Communist Peace Preservation Corps troops were reported at Kuantien.)
6. Over 300 troops of the Li Hong Kwang Detachment are stationed in Antung along the Yalu River Bank.
7. Thirty Korean Communist troops are performing guard duty at Changtienhokou (124-48, 40-25).
